Miss Margaret Weightman was the bride's only attendant. The bridegroom is connected with the Southern Railway, and after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crane left the city for Asheville, N. C., where they will make their future home.

MISS DAISY HAMPTON TO WED

Daughter of Confederate General to Become Bride of Judge Tucker.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Preston, near the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, left last night for New York, where it is understood she will procure her trousseau.

Miss Hampton announced privately before leaving Virginia that she is to become the bride in November of Judge Randolph Tucker, of Bedford City, who met the South Carolina girl at the university in his student days, from which time until now the attachment has existed. Her fiancé belongs to one of the most prominent and historic families in Virginia.

A SMART CUTAWAY COAT.

A particularly fetching model for a cutaway coat is shown in the accompanying sketch, and illustrates the latest ideas of the designers in the direction of the separate coat which promises to be so much worn. The coat is here made of Melton cloth, but any of the fashionable coatings would develop equally well. The shaping of this jaunty little garment is quite novel, and highly effective when displayed on a good figure, the three-button closing and cutaway effect both being in accord with fashion's most recent developments. The sleeve is long and cut on the mannish lines that are now so popular, being finished with a smart little cuff. The coat is not adapted to trimming of any sort, machine stitching providing all the adornment necessary. For the medium size two and one-half yards of 42-inch material will be needed.

Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure. A pattern of this may be obtained by enclosing 10 cents in stamps and addressing Pattern Department, The Washington Herald, 734 Fifteenth street northwest, giving number (2679) and size wanted.

FRANK P. BURKE DEAD

Well-known Business Man for Many Years.

WAS ILL ONLY A FEW DAYS

Once a Page in the Senate, He Enjoyed the Friendship of Many Noted Men—Clerk at the Old Kirkwood House, and Made Money in Lucky Real Estate Deals.

Frank P. Burke, the well-known retired business man and real estate owner, died last night at 11:30 o'clock, after a short illness. Mr. Burke had suffered from a severe cold and contracted a chill last Sunday, and his condition grew steadily worse, resulting in his death last night.

Mr. Burke was born in the County of Mayo, Ireland, about sixty years ago. He went to Baltimore when six years old, and a few years thereafter came to Washington, where he was employed as a Senate page in the Capitol. Later on he was employed in the Library of Congress, where he gained the friendship of many eminent men, including Thad. Stevens, Senator Pendleton, and others. He was afterward transferred to the Treasury.

In Business Thirty-five Years.

Mr. Burke engaged in business at Thirtieth and D streets for thirty-five years, where by close application and industry he amassed a competency. At the time of Lincoln's assassination he was a clerk at the old Kirkwood House, which was owned by Barney Green. The Raleigh Hotel occupies the site of that old hotel now. It was while he was employed there that an attempt was made on the life of Andrew Johnson, who was a guest of the Kirkwood.

Mr. Burke made money from the start, and soon began to invest in real estate. The most important purchase was the Shoemaker house, at $60,000, which he sold for $100,000 not long after he had purchased it. He then invested in the Cumberland Apartment House, which he owned at the time of his death, besides his home at 1215 I street, the southwest corner of Thirtieth and I streets, and other valuable property. He had a part interest in Hotel Randolph, to be erected at the corner of Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Member of Many Societies.

Mr. Burke was president of the Shamrock Club and treasurer of the Commodore Barry Association, and a prominent member of the United Irish League. He was also prominent in Catholic charities, and had a room free for all visiting clergymen of his church.

Few men in this city were better known or more beloved than Mr. Burke. He was genial, kindly, generous, and charitable, both in word and deed.

His wife, formerly Miss Molly O'Hare, and one son, Frank Burke, Jr., who is engaged in the banking business in Boston, survive him; also a brother in Baltimore.

GREATEST GOTHAM HOTEL.

Twelve Million Dollars Invested in the Plaza to Be Opened To-day.

New York has been aptly styled "the city of great hotels." Within its limits are to be found the largest and finest houses for public entertainment in the world. Each year witnesses the opening in the metropolis of one or more new hotels worthy the title "great." October 1 marks the opening of another new hotel in New York, which is the largest and finest yet constructed, the Plaza.

This new, nineteen story, twelve-million-dollar palace certainly has an ideal location, looking out as it does in one direction on Central Park, and in the other upon the city's most fashionable thoroughfare, Fifth avenue, and being a near neighbor to the new shopping and theater district. It stands on the site of the old hotel of the same name, but bears little resemblance to this one-time favorite. In construction, equipment, furnishings, and in all the features which make for comfortable and luxurious living the Plaza may be safely said to have no equal. And with all this elegance and convenience the charges, it is stated, will be extremely reasonable.

While fully 60 per cent of the Plaza's suites were booked for permanent occupancy long before the opening date, it will be managed with special reference to carrying for a large transient trade. The list of those who will make this newest and greatest of New York hotels their permanent home includes some of the most distinguished people in the country, many of them owners of palatial residences in New York and other cities.

The Plaza is under the immediate direction and management of Fred Sterry, manager of the Royal Poinciana and the Breakers, at Palm Beach, Fla., and of the Homestead, at Virginia Hot Springs.
